Get Ready!

What do you know about the fundamentals of the law in Canada? Look at the words below.
What ideas come to mind? What are some rights and responsibilities that all Canadians have?

Predict!

You are going to read a booklet called Learning about the Law: Fundamentals of the Law, p. 3-7. Look at the learning outcomes for this booklet (below). For each outcome, list 2 or more things that you expect you will read.

In this section, you will learn about:

	2 things I expect to read
Canada's laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• based on British law</li><li>• protects people's rights</li></ul>
Canada's constitution your rights and responsibilities
the Rule of Law
who makes the laws
levels of government
Canada's Queen

Read and Check!

Read the People's Law School (PLS) booklet, Learning about the Law: Fundamentals of the Law, p. 3-7 and confirm your predictions.

Build your Vocabulary!

Being able to transform words into different parts of speech will help you turn your passive vocabulary (words you know when you see or hear them) into active vocabulary (words you use when you speak or write). Fill in the chart below and then put the correct version of the word into the sentences. If you are unsure of the meaning, look for it in context in the text, talk to your classmates and teacher, or use a monolingual dictionary.

Noun	Verb	Adjective
	govern legal guilt protect discriminating regulation
	politicize symbolic persuasion

1. Because you can make use of _____ services in Canada, you must pay taxes.
2. We need laws to help _____ society.
3. _____, police officers and rich people must also obey the laws in Canada.
4. The Queen is the _____ head of Canada.
5. Canadians have the right to be thought of as innocent until they are proven _____.

Can you find forms of the above words in sentences in the PLS booklet?

Say it!

Learning about the Law: Fundamentals of the Law

Fundamentals of the Law

In English words, one syllable gets more stress. This makes the vowel sound longer, louder, higher and clearer. The other vowels are made weaker and they sound like the schwa sound /ə/. Some syllables even disappear. Sometimes the word stress shifts from one syllable to the other in different forms of the same word. Complete the chart below and then practice saying the words with the correct stress.

Spell the word	Say the word
politics	ˈpɒlɪtəks
political	pəˈlɪtəkəl regulate
symbol symbolic
social

Say it!

Practice saying the words in sentences. Find sentences in the text or write your own.

Think about it!

In Canada, rights are associated with responsibilities. Look at this list of responsibilities and consider the questions below. Work alone and make notes on your thoughts. Then, share your thoughts with a partner. Finally, share your thoughts with the whole class.

1. Go through this list item by item and think of reasons why it is important to fulfill each responsibility. For example, “It is important to help others in the community because there are many vulnerable people who need help, it creates good social connections, and it makes people feel good.”
2. Can you list specific example of how you can fulfill each of these responsibilities? For example, “I am taking responsibility for myself and my family by learning English.”
3. This list is a set of cultural ideals. This means that we value these things. It doesn't mean that we all fulfill them all the time. What are some values or responsibilities that people in your first culture share? How are these reflected in law? For example, “In my culture, we value being respectful of our parents. This means that we can't get married without our parents' consent.”
4. Do immigrants and other newcomers to Canada have the same social responsibilities as people born here? Why or why not?
5. Write one question to ask your partner about this topic.

Respecting other people's rights

Paying taxes

Obeying the law

Taking responsibility for oneself and one's family

Serving on a jury

Voting in elections

Helping others in the community

Protecting and enjoying our heritage and environment

Talk about it!

Rights and freedoms are often tested when protecting one person's or group's rights is weighed against another's or against the common good. The examples below are taken from real Canadian news stories. In small groups, discuss the following:

- the rights, freedoms and responsibilities at issue
- the costs and benefits of protecting these rights and freedoms
- your opinion

Case 1

1990: Sikh Mounties Permitted to Wear Turbans

Canadian Mounties (RCMP officers) are required to wear a hat as part of their uniform. Observant Sikhs are required to wear a turban as part of their religious sacrament. In 1990, the prohibition against RCMP officers wearing a turban was struck down. Now it is not uncommon to see police officers wearing a turban. For more about this, check out the CBC Digital Archives at <http://www.cbc.ca/archives/categories/society/crime-justice/mounties-on-duty-a-history-of-the-rcmp/sikh-mounties-permitted-to-wear-turbans.html>.

Canada's Polygamy Laws Upheld by BC's Supreme Court

Residents of Bountiful, BC follow the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, or FLDS, which practices polygamy as a tenet of their religion. In 2011, Chief Justice Bauman ruled to uphold Canada's anti-polygamy laws despite the fact that they interfere with the FLDS' community's freedom of religion. Bauman justified his decision because of the harm done to women and children in polygamous marriages. For more information about this case, check out CBC News at <http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/british-columbia/canada-s-polygamy-laws-upheld-by-b-c-supreme-court-1.856480>.

When is it hate speech?: 7 significant Canadian cases

There is an inherent tension between the right to speak freely and the need to guard against speech that ridicules or belittles specific groups. Canadians generally believe that there need to be reasonable limits to what can be said publically, and the courts have grappled with this grey area on numerous occasions. For example, in 1984, school teacher, James Keegstra was charged with hate speech for teaching anti-Semitism to his students. His conviction was later overturned because it was deemed that the anti-hate speech law interfered with his right to freedom of expression. Read more about the various cases that have weighed free speech against hate speech at CBC News <http://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/when-is-it-hate-speech-7-significant-canadian-cases-1.1036731>.
